

Art Break: Ariel DeAndrea's Photorealism at Louis K. Meisel and 'Charting the Divine Plan' at the American Museum of Folk Art

---

By A. E. Colas, Contributing Writer, June 11, 2018

Art Break has been reflecting on the phrase 'thinking outside the box' and the ways it can be interpreted. For instance, you could think outside the box if you decided to measure time in images instead of numbers. How about bringing the fantasies of your mind into the real world? Or make the hidden aspects of the world visible? All our picks this week take old ideas, pull them apart, and build a new box full of exciting possibilities. Visit any or all these shows to start breaking out of your own box of preconceived notions!

Ornelia Fieres: The Essence of a Moment: Reverse Fourier (1); courtesy of artist / signs and symbols™.

signs and symbols™: Ornelia Fieres: The Structure and Function of hidden Things (June 14 – July 22) is the German artist's first solo art show in the US. Fieres magnifies and manipulates distortions of found images captured in milliseconds too fast for human eyesight, questioning concepts of time, permanence, and reality.

signs and symbols™

102 Forsyth Street

Hours: Wed – Sun: 11-6

Admission: Free